Duesenberg

The story of the Chrysler Norseman is linked with one of the biggest naval accidents of the 20th Century. On July, 25, 1956, just before reaching her destination New York harbour, Italy's biggest and most luxurious Ocean Liner, SS Andrea Doria, was traveling in foggy weather off the coast of Massachusetts when she was rammed by Swedish liner MS Stockholm that had just left New York in opposite direction. MS Stockholm's radar officer had misjudged the distance between the two ships and SS Andrea Doria had tried to avoid the other ship but steered into its way instead, so that the bow of MS Stockholm hit Andrea Doria midships, causing a massive leak in its hull. Even though Andrea Doria had been deemed unsinkable, she only kept afloat for ten more hours before she finally sank.

Loaded inside Andrea Doria's belly at this cruise was the Chrysler Norseman, a luxurious four-seater Coupé that the Chrysler Styling Division at Detroit awaited eagerly for testing and preparations for the 1957 North American Car Shows. The fully functional handbuilt one-off prototype had been commissioned to Ghia in Turin, Italy, for construction by Virgil M. Exner, head of Chrysler's Styling Division. Its innovative cantilevered roof lacking any support pillars and the integration of a movable rear window had given the Italian constructors a hard time and had delayed the completion of the car for months. For passengers, these features would have provided a phenomenal undisturbed view and a kind of a 'shaded convertible' feeling. Unfortunately though, neither Exner and his crew, nor the interested public, ever got the chance to lay eyes on the Norseman. It will forever stay a legend.

Das Schicksal des Chrysler Norseman ist verbunden mit einem der größten Schiffsunglücke des vergangenen Jahrhunderts. Am 25.7.1956, kurz vor seiner Ankunft in New York, kollidierte der Transatlantik-Liner Andrea Doria im Nebel vor der Küste von Massachusetts mit der MS Stockholm, die New York kurz vorher in Gegenrichtung verlassen hatte. Ein Fehler des Radaroffiziers der Stockholm und ein verunglücktes Ausweichmanöver der Andrea Doria führten dazu, dass sich der Bug der Stockholm tief in die Seite der Andrea Doria bohrte. Obwohl die Andrea Doria als unsinkbar gegolten hatte hielt sie sich nur noch zehn Stunden nach dem Unfall über Wasser, bevor sie versank.

Im Bauch des Schiffes befand sich bei dieser Reise der Chrysler Norseman, ein viersitziges Luxuscoupé, das dringend in Detroit erwartet wurde um dort gründlich getestet und für die nordamerikanischen Autoshow 1957 vorbereitet zu werden. Das voll funktionsfähig ausgestattete Einzelstück war nach den Vorgaben von Chrysler Stylingchef Virgil M. Exner in Handarbeit bei Ghia in Turin gebaut worden. Sein neuartiges freitragendes Dach, das sich ohne A- und B-Säule über die Karosserie spannte und die elektrisch versenkbare Heckscheibe hatten die Konstrukteure dabei weit länger als geplant beschäftigt. Die Insassen des Norseman wären auf diese Weise während der Fahrt in den Genuss einer außergewöhnlichen Rundumsicht und besonders guten Frischluftzufuhr gekommen. Leider haben Exner und seine Leute in Detroit ihr Werk aber ebensowenig jemals zu Gesicht bekommen wie die interessierte Öffentlichkeit. Wegen seiner Besonderheiten und seiner einmaligen Geschichte aber ist das Auto zur Legende geworden.

Das Blackhawk Automobile Museum in Danville CA, unweit von San Francisco, ist eine der weltbesten öffentlich zugänglichen Sammlungen von klassischen Automobilen. Das Museum, das von einer privaten Stiftung betrieben wird, hat sich zur Aufgabe gemacht, die schönsten, exklusivsten und zum Teil einmaligen Raritäten der Automobilgeschichte zu präsentieren.

Zu den ständigen Exponaten, die zu den Sammlungen der Museumsgründer Ken Behring und Don Williams gehören, gesellen sich in wechselnden Ausstellungen Leihgaben aus Museen in aller Welt und Teilnehmer des Concours d'Elegance von Pebble Beach, die dort jedes Jahr nach dem traditionell im August stattfindenden Wettbewerb zu besichtigen sind.

Die neue MINICHAMPS Blackhawk Collection featured eine Reihe der interessantesten Vorbilder aus dem Blackhawk Museum in den Maßstäben 1:43 und 1:18.

The Blackhawk Museum in Danville CA, near San Francisco, is one of the best publicly open collections of classic automobiles in the world. The Museum, being part of a private foundation, showcases the most exclusive and most beautiful rarities of automobile history, many of them one of a kind. Changing exhibitions of loans from museums all over the world add to the collections of museum founders Ken Behring and Don Williams. For instance, every year, after the Pebble Beach Concours d'Elegance which takes place in August, many participants will traditionally be on show to a greater public at Blackhawk. The new MINICHAMPS Blackhawk Collection features highlights of the Blackhawk Museum modeled in 1:18th and 1:43 scale.
